Jonesboro Plant Sale Is Opposed

Rate Contracts No Good, Gentry Tells Big Crowd

Hope Senator Makes Stirring Speech for Municipal Plant.

FIGHT FOR CONTROL Factions Pointing for Power Board Election July 25.

BY J. DONALD MURRAY
Staff Writer Jonesboro Tribune
Special Dispatch to The Star
JONESBORO, July 17.—Addressing what is believed to be the largest crowd that ever jammed its way into the Craighead county court house here, Senator U. A. Gentry of Hope, in a fiery speech at a public meeting of the Citizens League opposing the proposed sale of Jonesboro's municipally-owned water and light plant here, Tuesday evening charged that "Rate contracts mean nothing to utilities" and asked "If the power trust can spend millions of dollars buying out school teachers, the press and even the pupils of the nation what harm can there be in the citizens of a municipality banding themselves together for their own protection when they have a cent of money at their disposal?"

Battle for Control
Gentry spoke here at the request of the Citizens League, an organization opposing the sale of the plant and supporting Gordon Mathews, H. J. Boster and Will L. Mack for election to the Power Commission here July 25. The League has been waging a heated battle with the "Property Owners' League," of which F. H. Watson is chairman and which advocates sale of Jonesboro's two-million-dollar water and light plant, on the grounds that the public would receive better service and the sale of the plant to a private corporation would bring industries to Jonesboro.

They have set up Dr. H. H. McAdams, W. S. Montague and Charles Robinson as candidates for the three vacancies on the water and light commission. The Citizens League charges that the sale of the plant would bring about a rate increase, would impair the present splendid service given by the plant and that the money for the sale of the plant would go to the city instead of to the individual property owners.

Gentry charged that F. H. Watson had misquoted the rates at Hope in an advertisement appearing in Jonesboro papers, in which it was stated that the rate was twelve cents flat.

Fling at Gas Rates
In support of his charge that "Rate contracts mean nothing to utilities," Gentry gave as an example the gas company which has secured franchises at Hope, Arkansas and other cities in the southwestern part of the state and which guaranteed a maximum rate of 55 cents per 1000 cubic feet. He claimed that the company was allowed to raise the rates to 70 cents after being defeated in a hearing before the city council and in the state courts.

The Citizens League will meet again next Tuesday night and will hear a address by Arthur Sneed of Piggott. The fight over the sale of the plant here, which was inaugurated at the election of commissioners two years ago, was revived by the Watson faction several months ago. The "for sale" faction was defeated two years ago but claims to have gained numerous supporters since that time.

They are: The American State Bank and First Bank, of, three Port, Tampa; the Bank of Mulberry, at Mulberry, and the Ellenton State Bank, at Ellington.

TAMPA, Fla., July 17. (AP)—The Citizens Bank & Trust Co., a state institution, and nine subsidiary banks failed to open their doors today.

Besides the Citizens Bank & Trust Company, four of the depositaries were in Tampa. A notice posted on the doors of the Citizens and signed by the state bank examiner said the affairs of the institution were in his hands. The branches affected are: Bank of Ybor City, which suffered a run Monday; LaFayette Bank; Citizens Nebraska Avenue Bank; Franklin Bank, all of Tampa; the Bank of Palm City; Bradenton Bank & Trust Co.; First State Bank & Trust Co., Sarasota; First State Bank at Mead and the Bank of Pasco County at Dade City.

A. T. Jackson, state bank examiner, has been here since Monday checking up conditions, and Capt. R. A. Gray, assistant state comptroller, was expected to arrive from Tallahassee at noon today to take charge.

Directors Statement
The board of directors of the Citizens Bank & Trust Co., at a meeting today, issued a written statement that the condition was due to "unwise investments and continued adverse conditions" following appearance of the Mediterranean fruit fly, unrest and fear developing on the part of the people.

The directors declared that all depositors would be paid in full and the banks go out of business. Paid in capital of the Citizens Bank & Trust Company was $1,000,000, according to statement of condition at close of business on June 29. Deposits were given in excess of $3,000,000.

Last Request for Photos of Candidates for Festival Maids

Hope's fourth annual Melon Festival is a scant three weeks away. This newspaper would like to carry the picture of every girl entered as a candidate for Maid of the Festival. To do so, we must have the photos at once, for it takes a few days time to have the picture sent to the engravers and the newspaper cut returned.

Understand, Star sponsors no candidate. Frankly, we hope all of them win, for never a more attractive, lovely and winsome group of femininity bloomed "neath Arkansas sun"—and down here, Mister, they grow melons husky and maidens sweet.

Star is very grateful to those who have forwarded photos. They will be returned without delay. But we truly want others of the girls who honor the melon festival by taking an active part in its success.

Please send that photo in now!

Bomb Explosion Scares Ft. Smith

FORT SMITH, July 17.—(AP)—Investigation by fire and police officials today failed to establish a motive for the explosion which wrecked the Mystic theatre late last night.

A powder band was found a short distance from the scene of the explosion which caused damage of $3,000 to the theatre building and $500 to furniture. Large holes were torn in the rear of the brick wall, while the plate glass doors in front of the structure were torn from their hinges. Glass in adjacent buildings was shattered. No one was in the theatre at the time.

Workmen on highways and on the city paving projects felt the full force of the heat though no prostrations are reported. The forecast for today was continued warmer—and it is.

Smithson, a carpenter, had recently lost a lawsuit and had suffered business reverses.

Caraway Scores Tariff Measure

Arkansas Senator Says Measure Is "Deed of Darkness."

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP)—Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas declared Tuesday night that after this week, if present republican intention is carried out, no democrat will participate in the framing of the tariff bill.

"The purpose of excluding the democrats will be understood by every policeman," he said. "It is the first principle," he said, "of the successful commission of crime that there shall be no witnesses, except those who can plead," when questioned, that they way not answer because to do so would be to incriminate themselves."

"Let us admit," he continued, "that the republican tariff boosters in a difficult position. They got support and campaign contributions under the understanding if not the definite promise of tariff favors. They would be uncomfortable if they had to deliver in the face of objections and criticism of those who feel that bargains at the expense of the people not to be fulfilled. So they are going to do it in the dark, and trust to luck, log rolling and administration influence, to head off amendments that would give the consumers a look in."

Report To General Committee Shows Plans Completed

Every Detail Functioning Smoothly As Final Stage Entered.

EXPECT HUGE CROWD

City Prepares To Entertain Largest Crowd In History.

Wynne Denty, general chairman of the Melon Festival committees, announced today that all preliminary plans have been made, many of the committees having practically completed the duties assigned them and that others are functioning smoothly, with prospects being bright for all work to be done and the last-hour rush of detail much lighter than heretofore.

The concession committee, important to a degree in the festival success, has disposed of all concessions for the day, securing Miller shows this year as an attraction as they were last year. It is interesting to recall that at last year's Festival the parade committee was short on floats and the show management donated the use of five of their big ones. This year they have preferred the use of as many ten trucks if the committee can use them.

The number of floats in the parade will be larger than in any previous event, the floats committee says, a number of neighboring cities taking advantage of the committee's offer of space in the parade for municipalities in this section.

Railroads are co-operating to the limit, there being three musical organizations, one each from the Missouri Pacific, L. & A. and Frisco in the line of march. The routing committee, traffic committee and others have about completed their jobs they report to the general body.

The committee to secure melons have been busy, seeing the growers and securing promise of melons. It is necessary each year to buy many thousands of pounds of melon and this year purchases will be made only from those who are willing to aid in the success of the festival.

Just one major report is yet to be made—the speaking committee to announce the name of the speaker of the day. That is expected to be released within a day or two and everything will then be ready for the event of the year.

The decorating of the city and the building of floats for those desiring them will be handled this year, as it was last, by a decorating concern, a number having sought permission to come here for the festival.

Poeding the multitude, always a major problem, will be handled this year much as it was last, with hotels, restaurants and lunch counters putting on extra help for the rush and civic organizations of the city will have lunch rooms both in the downtown district and at Fair Park where the coronation ceremonies will be held and the big melon eating take place.

The Pan-American Highway

LAST week a news item in The Star called attention to the visit here of inspectors following the route of the proposed Pan-American Highway.

This is to the motor road connecting the United States with Brazil, the Argentine, Chile and other South American nations. The road, as now proposed, comes from out Eastern states, down through Corning, Arkansas, to Little Rock, Hope, Texarkana, and out of the United States by way of Laredo, Texas.

The dream of international transportation facilities has never been realized in the western world. In Europe, so many nations so close together make road and rail communication almost as easy as traveling from one country to another; but the two continents of America live apart from each other. There is no question but that a paved highway across Mexico and the Panama Canal would send a world of American travelers south of the equator on their next tour. It would probably bring a large number of South Americans up here to visit us.

But that is still in the realm of probabilities. The thing we want to call attention to is the certainty that whenever the Pan-American highway is actually built, Hope and Hempstead county will be on its route. It is significant that no through rail or motor route to the Southwest, Mexico or South America, can afford to go around this section. It must come through us—and that means a world of encouragement to those who would like to see our city and country more highly developed.

The reason for this route is obvious. We too often remember that two-thirds the area of the United States lies west of the Mississippi river and forget that two-thirds of the population lives east of it. The straightest line between two points is the line that traffic must eventually come to, and from east of the Mississippi the straightest line to the Southwest runs through Hope.

Fewer Papers — Better Ones

THE annual report of the secretary of the Arkansas Press Association, which appears in the current issue of Arkansas Publisher, has some interesting things to say about the improvement of the Bear State press. Clio Harper writes as follows:

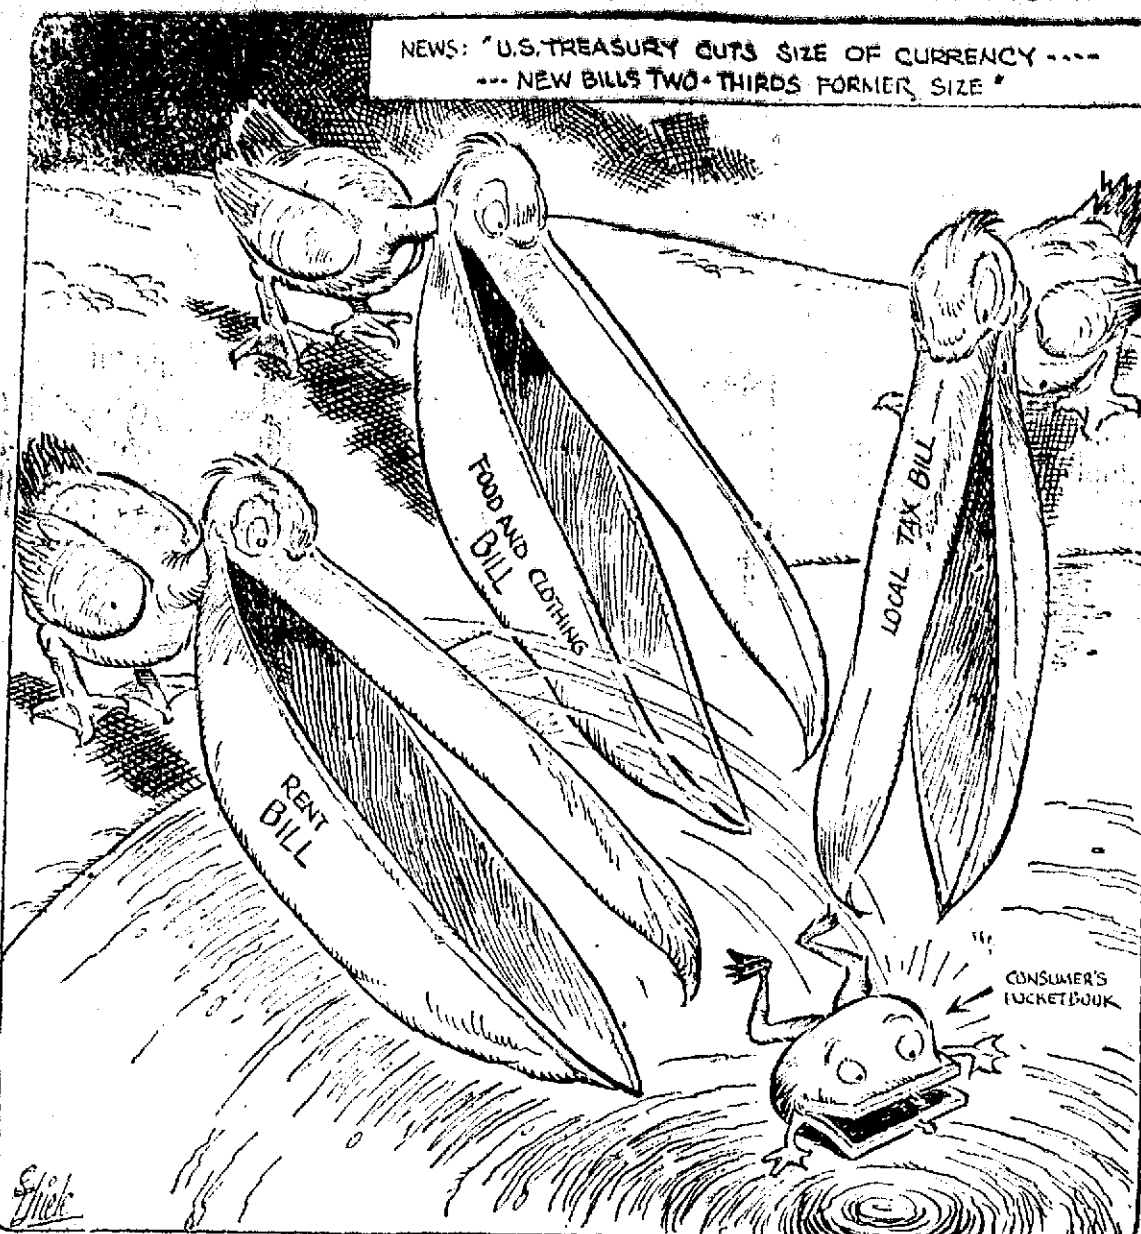

"There are fewer newspapers in Arkansas today than there were ten years ago, notwithstanding all the improvements in the methods of newspaper publishing. Mergers and consolidations are in order. There are fourteen counties in the state that have but one paper each. Modern methods and equipment, with improved facilities of distribution, are responsible for a greater degree of improvement in the last ten years than had been known in fifty years before.

"The hand-set paper is almost a thing of the past and there is scarcely a country shop that is not printed the Mergenthaler or Intertype way. Greatly increased composition, a clean face with every issue, and greater freedom from typographical blunders and unattractive makeup contribute to the improvement of Arkansas newspapers.

"More attention is being given to news coverage, headline writing, balanced makeup, and attractive press work than ever before. News agencies are covering the field more thoroughly and in a score of country offices may be found today the marvelous automatic telegraph receiver which brings into the office all the news of the world. There is also a notable renaissance in the editorial page, neglected by many, derided by some, but more and more being recognized as a force with which any community must measure its civic conscience."

A Few More "Bills" We'd Like to See Reduced Next!

NEWS: "U.S. TREASURY CUTS SIZE OF CURRENCY ---
--- NEW BILLS TWO-THIRDS FORMER SIZE"

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—The hotel owners of the capital do not recall a summer when business has been so good.

First, there's a tariff bill being constructed by the Senate Finance Committee, which means that more than the usual quota of lobbyists are occupying expensive suites and that more members of Congress are here than ordinarily.

Second, President Hoover and his staff are here for the summer. There are thousands of jobs yet to be filled and the seekers of these are coming in and going out of town all the time.

Third, the fact that the president remains greatly augments the bumper crop of tourists which always follows in the first few months following inauguration of a new president.

Ordinarily "near everybody" leaves town for the summer. This year a large portion of "near everybody" is sticking around.

Very shortly there will doubtless be an epidemic of anecdotes about people calling up President Hoover and ordering a case of gin or about people calling up a prominent Washington bootlegger and asking for Mr. and Mrs. Hoover. The genesis of these stories will be the fact that the new White House telephone number, National 1414, is almost identical with that of the bootlegger—just close enough for customers and operators to make mistakes. One ventures to predict that the bootlegger rather than President Hoover, will soon change his number.

Mrs. Hoover brought back many souvenirs from her good-will tour with the president-elect in Latin America, but perhaps the smallest one of all recently came chasing after her.

At Corinto, Nicaragua, where the party landed for a couple of hours, she saw a tiny ebony doll, made into a pin and worn by an elderly woman. She remarked the attractiveness of the pin to its owner, whereupon the old lady tried to take it off and give it to her. Mrs. Hoover, naturally, excused herself from accepting it.

But when Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa was named Nicaraguan minister to the United States the old lady sought him out. She had removed the metal pin and had run a ribbon through the little ornament and she asked Dr. Sacasa to deliver it to Mrs. Hoover. So the minister brought it along and when he presented it found that Mrs. Hoover remembered the incident, the pin and the donor.

The SHINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 BY NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Molly Burham, graduating from college, inherits $10,000. And it seems destined to bring her nothing but misery. In the first place, Molly is desperately in love with Jack Wells, a handsome boy without any money. Jack loves her, but flatly declines to marry her until he can take care of her.

They quarrel when she offers him her inheritance. They spend a miserable evening, bickering over money. And Molly, in tears, announces that she is going to get a job and live her own life. Her newly acquired fortune will make it possible for her to take an apartment and live comfortably while she looks for work.

She says that she had rather do that than return to the mean little prairie town where she lives.

After Molly has gone, in tears, to her room, Jack takes from his pocket a little diamond ring. He had meant to give it to her that night, but suddenly it seems very small and cheap to him.

He drops it mournfully back in his pocket, and departs for the last train. Next morning Molly goes job-hunting with her dear friend Rita Melnotte. Rita is a brilliant, cynical young thing who is experimenting disastrously with a companionate marriage.

Eventually Molly is promised a chance on a newspaper. She meets Jack for dinner, and to tell him her big news. He is maddeningly unenthusiastic, and dampens her ardor considerably. Then he remarks that he has some news himself.

Jack hates to think of Molly working and they quarrel. But in the end, they make up, and Jack gives Molly a little diamond he has bought for her. A tragedy happens when the tiny ring falls over the side of the boat in which they are rowing. Molly cries, and Jack comforts her, and later she goes with him to his room to help him pack.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

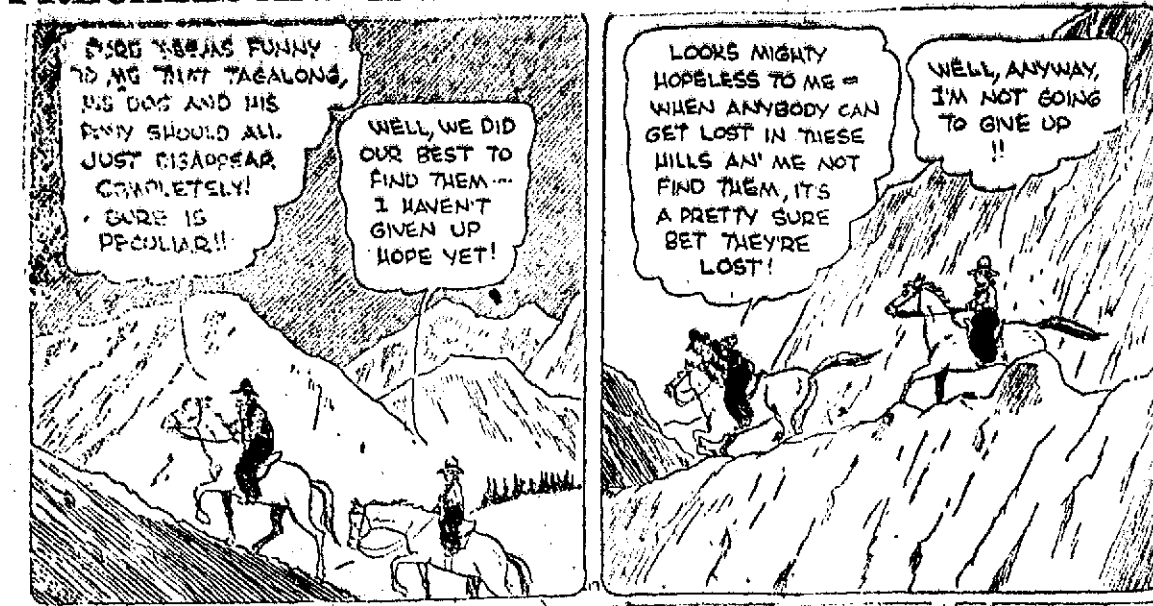

Molly helped Jack fold his things. His underclothes and pajamas. His other suit. And his dinner coat. She rolled his socks up in neat little balls. And wrapped his shoes in tissue paper, so they wouldn't soil his nice clean shirts. Then she pulled a ribbon out of her lingerie, and tied it around the letters she had sent him.

And he showed her his book of snapshots, and a family group in a silver frame. His mother had white hair and was rather regal looking. Molly supposed she'd meet her before very long, although Jack confessed he had not told the family that he had a sweetheart.

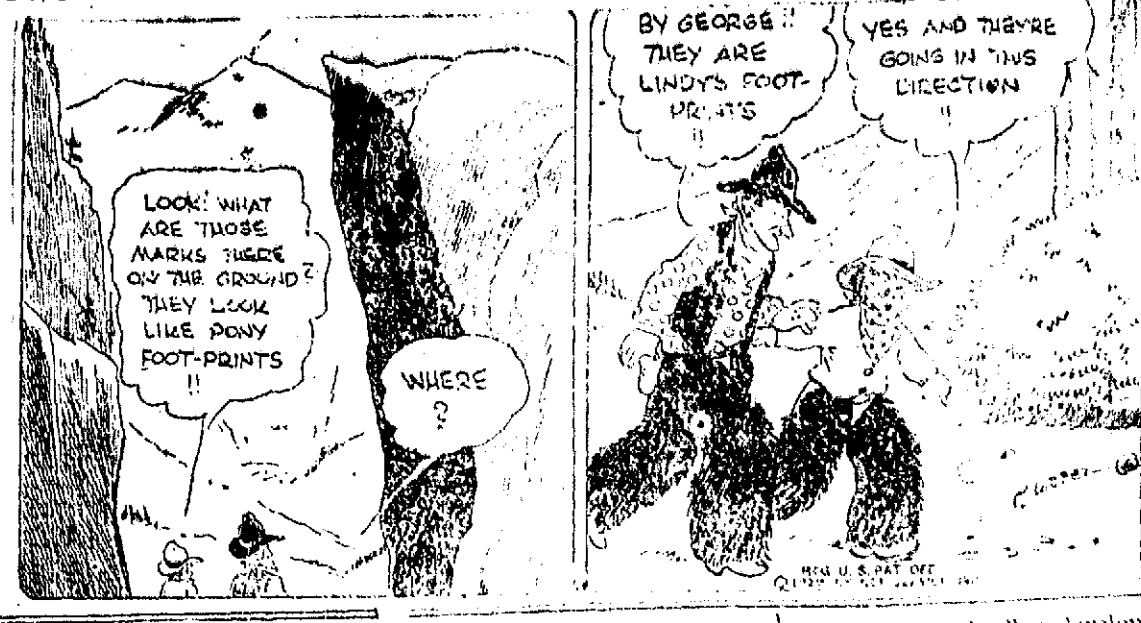

"Mother'd only worry," he declared. "She thinks modern girls are something fierce. I want to wait until I can show you off properly."

"But Jack," she was a little hurt. "I should think you'd want to tell her about me, dear. I've told my family every blessed thing about you. They know your eyes are blue. And that you've a cowl-neck. And broad shoulders. And that you played football and hockey. My goodness, they know the city editor, who had light expression. She mentioned also her dreams of success and fame. It was a rather stiff letter, she was afraid, and she felt that she had not expressed herself very well. She sent it by air mail, and hoped for the best.

A few days later she received a reply from her mother.

Now, Molly's mother was a rather old-fashioned woman. She had no new fangled ideas about independence nor gainful occupations for women. Moreover, she was, at the time, a very lonely woman.

"Dear daughter," she wrote. "Dad brought your letter from the postoffice this noon when he came home for dinner. It was strange, the way it arrived, just as it did. I had spent the morning preparing a paper to read at the Wednesday Club. We are having a debate this week. Resolved, that the Modern Girl is Happier Than Her Grandmother. I had taken the negative. And it so happened that I had read recently an article in a magazine by some well known woman writer. I forgot her name at the moment."

"Well daughter, she said something like this—'The point is,' she said, 'that there are grades in happiness, and that the inferior kind based upon selfishness, competition and publicity may make the modern woman happier; but it is not so becoming to her, nor so beneficial to others, as the frugal happiness enjoyed by her grandmother.'"

"My dear daughter, your father and I believed that you were engaged to a fine young man whom we had hoped to meet this summer. We had thought our little girl was coming home to us, and we had planned such lovely times to have together. I had put your name up, dear for the Woman's Club, and your poor father has been planning to buy you a little car. However, I do not wish to emphasize our own disappointment. But what about your young man, Molly? Have you, for the sake of securing more liberty, and a wisp or two of indignant personal happiness, broke your promise to him, as well as sacrificed your loyalty to us?"

"My dear child, your poor aunt Minnie would turn in her grave if she could know what her money has led you to. And a position on a newspaper of all things! You write of the joy of living, and of self-expression. Your aunt Minnie certainly derived considerable satisfaction from living all her days without reproach. She was never heard to worry about self-expression, which is a new disorder. She believed that she expressed herself very well.

"She imparted a dignity a spiritual elegance which younger women do not feel, being obsessed with the fear of being enslaved and suppressed. I have quoted that, Molly, as best I can from the article by the magazine writer, because it so exactly expresses what I would like to say to you."

Molly dropped the letter impatiently.

"If that isn't just like mother!" she thought unreasonably.

Then a figure on the back page caught her attention. "500." She snatched the paper up hurriedly.

Her mother had written, toward the end of the letter, "Your father and I have talked things over, and have decided not to stand in your way. After all, you have, I suppose a right to pursue happiness in your own fashion. Aunt Minnie's estate will not be settled for some weeks. But your father is going to send you $500 to defray whatever expenses you may have, until such time as the executor sends you your entire inheritance."

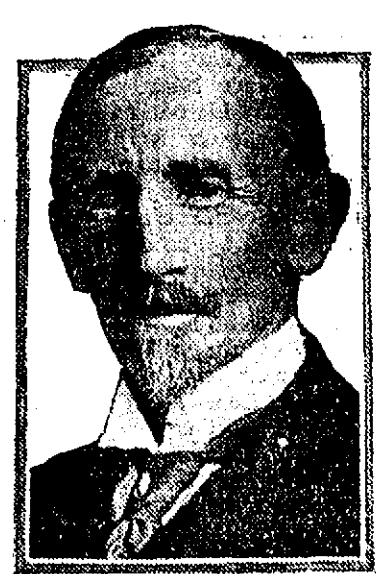

Molly's eyes filled with tears. "Dear old dad!"

"And now," she decided joyously. "I can take a little apartment! I can have a kitchenette all my own, and a nice big bath!"

Hoffman Challenges Babson's Attack On Motion Pictures; Scientist Finds Screen Great Educational Influence

Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, whose annual studies of homicide and of general criminal tendencies are known throughout the United States, has taken sharp exception to the use of his name in an attack on motion pictures made recently by Roger W. Babson, business statistician.

DR. FREDERICK L. HOFFMAN

Dr. Hoffman believes that "production care within the industry effectively excludes pernicious illustrations of human conduct" and that "the good that the motion picture has done as an educational factor is enormous." From his home in Wellesley, Massachusetts, Dr. Hoffman issued the following statement:

"On my return from an air trip to the West Indies, I regret to find an accumulation of letters and newspaper clippings suggestive of profound misunderstanding on the part of the public due to the use of my name made by Mr. Roger W. Babson in connection with an attack upon the motion picture industry. Mr. Babson has used my homicide statistics to develop the idea that the motion picture is the primary cause of the increase in homicide in this country during recent years."

"I myself have made no such statement and nothing contained in my figures could be construed to justify such a conclusion. As a matter of fact, my data would justify the opposite inference in that homicides are more common in sections of the country, particularly in the south, in which the proportion of representation of motion pictures is measurably less than in the north and west.

"I have, therefore, felt it advisable to make the following statement of facts:

"1. I have no connection whatsoever with Mr. Babson's statistical organization.

"2. A continuous study of homicides over a long period of years has failed to develop even a casual correlation of the motion picture to violent crime.

"3. It goes without saying that certain pictures may possibly aid in the development of a criminal instinct, but in contrast to this the good that the motion picture has done as an educational factor is enormous.

"Motion pictures afford the cheapest and most effective means of relaxation to vast numbers of people who would otherwise be in idleness both as regards thought and time. To me, as a scientific student of social conditions and educational progress, the motion picture is one of the most valuable if not the most valuable and effective method yet developed of visualizing to the public matters of the highest importance which would otherwise come to naught."

"Production care within the industry effectively excludes pernicious illustrations of human conduct so that it is only by indirect inference that wrongful conclusions can be drawn. Every industry or effort is liable to misuse but, considering the vast amount of good done by the motion picture, I feel that the amount of harm and its relation to homicidal tendencies may safely be considered negligible."

"4. In view of the foregoing I consider the conclusion drawn by Mr. Babson from my statistics on homicidal deaths wholly inapplicable to the problem under consideration."

Live Life To The Full

This is the most amazing century in the history of the world. Within the brief span of twenty-five years man has learned to fly, to talk across space, to see through living bodies. No one knows what miracles the next quarter of a century will produce.

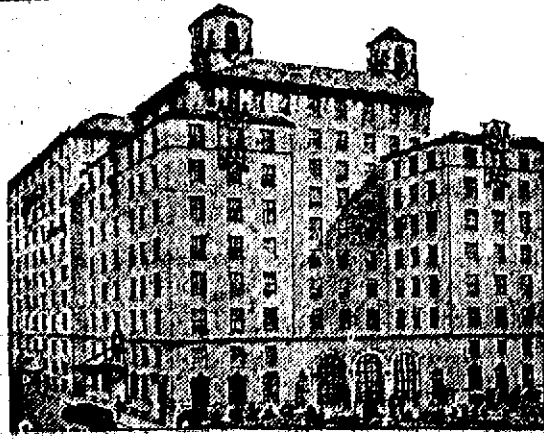

But it is not these more spectacular inventions alone that human progress has leaped ahead.

Since the dawn of civilization women have aged faster than men. The deadly monotonous routine and drudgery of house-keeping has borne them down.

But modern science has taken away the chief causes of drudgery. Through advertising, women by the millions have found a way to have water, light, heat, cold . . . at the touch of a finger. No women of even the most modest means need to be a drudge today if she reads advertising.

It is advertising that has stimulated an overwhelming demand for these newer, better things of life. And this demand has made possible tremendous new industries furnishing well-paid work for millions of men. An endless circle that has made the average American family today the healthiest, happiest and most prosperous in all the world.

Read advertising. Don't miss the new things—live life to the full.

Memento for Mike

Mike Joyce, who has a house full of kids in Cleveland, returned recently after spending two and a half months plying his puppies from New York to Los Angeles. And he had $65 and a lot of moans. He was in Mr. C. C. Pyle's transcontinental race and it was the second one in which he completed. He got his dough last year but when the pay off time came this year he got a note.

The promoter promised to pay him $1250 in 90 days and Mike still has the note.

"I offered to settle with him for $600 but he wouldn't do it," Mike moaned. "It cost me $300 to enter the race and it cost about $800 for food and beds along the way because they stuck us. And all I got out of it was $236 on account, which just got me home with a little to spare."

If He Could Only Sing

Joyce told the home town reporters he was through with puppy pounding. He would go into vaudeville if he could sing but he can't sing so he hopes he will have to go to work.

"Pyle said he was broke after the race and he had three bouncers in his hotel as a body-guard to keep the troupeurs away from him," Joyce said. "But he musta made $75,000 on the stunt."

"After we had run sixty miles a day he would make us go into dance halls and stick around late at night and he got all the dough. If we wouldn't go into the dance halls he would add two hours on our time."

Some of the puppy pounders had their own feeders along with them but Joyce said he couldn't afford a private chef and he had to stop along the way and eat hot dogs and that the delay slowed him up so he couldn't win the race.

Don't Be Too Harsh

Since the Poughkeepsie regatta there has been considerable complaint in the newspaper trade journals about the manner in which the race was handled by the radio broadcasters.

It was demanded in one journal that experienced newspaper reporters be placed at the microphones.

There is no doubt that some of the men describing sporting events for the radio make mistakes but

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Babe Ruth denies he has changed his stance. And says he isn't hitting so many homers because he was sick. And because he shortens his grip and tries to knock in runs when they are needed. Instead of trying to knock the ball off the bat. The Cornell crew was an hour late getting to the starting line at the Poughkeepsie regatta. And it cost the radio broadcasting company 20 grand—Little Higgins says he fears the Tigers more than the Athletics. And a lot of smart baseball men think the A's are a cinch. To blow when the going gets hard And Max Bishop may have to don glasses.

"Who'll Whip Matlock" Is Query Hope Fans Want Answered Now

If Thursday Night's Battle Shows Decisive Victory for Either, Will Meet Old Scrapper On Festival Date Here.

A popular form of entertainment among boxing fans here, and the principle topic of conversation wherever a couple of them gather, is "Who'll whip Matlock?" The answer is not forthcoming definitely. For the old mauler will take a lot of whipping and still be about as easy to handle as a cargo of uncrated wildcats.

Leavelle came up here from Waco to hand a sleepy powder to Matlock. Yet in their bout he was on the defensive in every round save two when he opened up with a flash of speed and hitting power. He lost, however, on a decision.

Now Ashton, of Vicksburg, who is recommended by the Arkansas Boxing Commission as being Matlock's class, comes in to take the big boy's measure. Promoters we would never criticize anyone for making a mistake on that Poughkeepsie regatta. We have had considerable experience in covering general news and all kinds of sporting events and we think that the Poughkeepsie regatta is the most difficult assignment that can fall on a reporter. Especially to those press associations boys who have to sit at the finish line and guess at the crews as they get to the finish line.

There is only one way to identify a crew and that is by the color painted on the tip of the oars and when darkness is falling that's a very unreliable means of identification.

In baseball the players are all in front of you at times. In football the players are numbered. Hockey, tennis and golf are cinches to get accurately. But rowing with nine crews in a race. Great heavens!

Robins and Russell wanted to see him in action before putting him on so slated him for a ten round bout with Leavelle for Thursday night. Another thing, the promoters want to see Leavelle for Thursday night on the offensive before agreeing to let him meet Matlock in the premier bout of the year—the Melon Festival card.

Advance notices are to the effect that Ashton is tough and willing and as both he and Leavelle want in on the big purse Festival Day it is considered a cinch there will be plenty action at the Rink this week. Leavelle is here and has been working out daily. Ashton arrives this afternoon with his man angus, and all will be set for the big show tomorrow night.

And in thinking of the card this week, don't forget the Selmar-Carter mix-up. That ought to be as good a fight as the main event, crowd in his only appearance here. Carter, a clown boxer, won the when he whipped Red Williams. Selmar has a following, too, and as he is always boring in and Carter not much on backing up, it will itself be a bout worth the evening out.

STAR BOARDERS, NOTICE—WINGLESS CHICKENS!

OMAHA, July 17.—Dr. T. T. Reinwald, an unemotional scientist, has done a great favor for the small boy who sits hungrily up to the dinner table on Sunday and has to watch the "company" get all the best portions of the roast chicken until nothing is left for him but a wing.

He has bred chickens which have no wings at all! Small boys and star boarders, accordingly, may be expected to fare somewhat better after this provided poultry breeders generally take to Dr. Reinwald's discovery.

Dr. Reinwald has a whole brood of chicks here that lack wings and, in some cases, lack claws as well. These chickens, he said, will lay more eggs than the ordinary hen, which has an idle period of about 15 weeks every will do exactly what he is doing. Chickens a hundred years ago, he says, had a much longer and stronger wing and toe than ordinary presentday chickens. Natural evolution processes, however, he believes, would take 300 or more years to accomplish what he is doing.

Incidentally he points out that a two-foot fence is plenty high enough to keep a flock of wingless chickens at home. He believes that within five years his wingless variety will be as common as the ordinary variety—and, he says, because of their great egg production, the price of eggs will fall to around 10 cents a dozen.

TRADE-MARKED PRODUCTS VS BLIND BUYING

"Standard" Motor Oil and "Standard" Gasoline are trade-marked, uniform-quality products that you can depend on to give you the maximum in service for your money—no matter when or where you buy them.

The "Standard" Bars-and-Circle on a pump is the guaranty of a big, reliable company and a responsible dealer that the product in the pump is of a definite quality and represents a real value at the price.

When you buy gasoline and motor oil from a station which does not carry a trade-mark on its pumps, you are buying with your eyes shut. You may get a good product, but it's a gamble with the odds against you. The quality and relative value of gasoline and oil sold at such a station are unknown. No one stands sponsor for them!

Why take chances, when "Standard" Dealers are so numerous and so conveniently located?

How Spanish Flyers Were Rescued At Sea

PICKED UP IN MID-OCEAN—This remarkable rescue picture, taken from the deck of the British air-plane carrier Eagle, shows the rescue at sea of Major Franco, Spanish ocean flyer and his two gallant companions, after their plane had drifted for more than a week after a forced descent near the Azores. Rockets sent up by Major Franco about dawn were sighted by a lookout aboard the Eagle. A small boat from the warship has the plane in tow.

ALONGSIDE THE RESCUE SHIP—The Numancia, the plane in which the Spanish flyers attempted a flight across the Atlantic to New York only to be forced down in mid-ocean, is shown here as it was drawn alongside H. M. S. Eagle, the rescue ship. Major Franco is in the cockpit.

SAFE AFTER A WEEK ADRIFT—This picture shows the Spanish plane Numancia, ill-fated trans-Atlantic craft, being hoisted aboard the H. M. S. Eagle after the flyers had been rescued at sea where they had been adrift for more than a week. The British warship took them and the plane to Gibraltar.

'Coxey's Army' To March Again As Veteran Campaigner Carries His Fight To People

General and His Actress Daughter Plan 3000-Mile Tour to Invade Homes of Foes In Congress

BY BRUCE CATTON

MASSILLON, O., July 17.—General Jacob S. Coxey, who led a forlorn band of ragged job-seekers to Washington 35 years ago and marched straight into trouble, ridicule and a kind of folk-lore immortality is about to go on the march again.

A new Coxey's Army is forming—forming for a 3000-mile tour of the nation. It seeks the same distant frontier that the Massillon general sought 35 years ago—better times for the average man.

This group, however, will not string its ragged marchers along dusty pikes, footsore and straggling.

It will travel in an automobile caravan, with a steam calliope to toutle a quickstep ahead, big red trucks to carry the tent and 5000 seats for Coxey's audiences—for this is to be a speaking tour—a luxurious foreign-built touring car as the general's own chariot, and two big sleeping car busses.

Direct to the Voters
Coxey is planning no descent on the White House or Capitol, such as he attempted with his famous army of unemployed in 1894. He is going direct to the people of 12 congressional districts, scattered from Maine to Utah, to spread the gospel of his new plan to reduce unemployment, promote prosperity and secure good roads and wipe out the public debt.

His far-reaching scheme is comparatively simple. Briefly, it would enable cities, counties or states—or the federal government itself—to get all the money needed without paying a cent of interest charges. And since, on many public jobs, the interest charges come to more than the cost of the jobs themselves, Coxey figures that this would reduce taxes, provide much more money for necessary public works—thus, in turn, increasing employment and stimulating industry.

His Plan In Brief.

Here is what his plan provides:

A city, let us say, wishes to put through an expensive street paving program. Instead of issuing long-term bonds, it would deposit with the U. S. Treasury non-interest-bearing 25-year bonds covering the amount of money it needs. The Treasury, thereupon, would issue bank notes for that amount, and would deliver them at once to the city, retaining one per cent to cover the cost of printing, etc. The city, in turn, would pay off the principal to the Treasury, at four per cent a year. Thus, at the end of 25 years, its bonds, held by the Treasury, would be cancelled; and the bank notes spent by the city would be returned to the Treasury, and retired from circulation.

The amount of bonds that any city or other government unit might issue would be limited to one-half of the assessed valuation of its real property.

Killed In Committee
The bill providing for all this was introduced in the last congress at Coxey's request, but was stifled in the House Committee on Banking and Currency. Coxey now plans to visit the home districts of each of the 11 congressmen who voted to kill his bill and make speeches to their constituents. In fact, he is going to visit the home precincts of one congressman who Coxey is not quite sure of this solon's conversion.

Here are General Jacob S. Coxey, who led the famous march of "Coxey's Army" on Washington 35 years ago, and his pretty daughter, Ruth Coxey, who plans a 3000-mile motor tour in behalf of the general's revolutionary finance plan this summer. Inset shows one of the big trucks in their motor fleet.

"I've been making this fight for 35 years," Coxey said. "It started in the 'nineties. I was living about five miles out of Massillon and the roads were almost impassable. There was a lot of unemployment and I got to thinking—the country needs good roads, and the men need jobs. Why not combine the time they get the last of the interest-bearing bonds paid off, it'll be time to rebuild the roads, so they'll have to issue a new set and saddle a new burden of debt on their children.

No Interest, His Plan,
"Under my scheme there'd be no interest. Why, nowadays a city are in the east. Hundreds of people appear in cathedral and bridge scenes, adding to the general effectiveness of the gripping drama of old Peru.

Conducting Religious Vacation School In July
A religious vacation school is in operation this and next week in St. Mark's Catholic church Stamps, Ark. Through the rural office of the National Catholic Welfare Conference 7000 schools of this kind are being conducted in the United States during this month. These schools are of a month duration, but, to gain as much good as possible, and spread 1, the Hope Mission District has divided the month into two parts. The first school was held at DeQueen which was attended by children from DeQueen, Foreman, Horatio, Locksburg and Mineral Springs. The second school at Stamps, is being attended by children from Hope, Stamps and Magnolia.

These schools are under the supervision of Rev. George F. X. Strassner. He is assisted by Sisters M. Thecla, O. S. B., and Mary Agnes, O. S. B., from St. Scholastica's Convent and Academy, Benedictine Hill, Fort Smith.

Classes are conducted in the study of the catechism, bible history, Christian conduct, religious art, and pious hymns. Many adults and non-Catholics have been attending both schools.

Seven out of 10 visitors to Palestine last year were from America.

Renews Drive for Odd Finance Proposal will spend $2,000,000 all told, in order to get something done that only costs $900,000. My plan would cut taxes. It would enable cities, counties and states to do two or three times as much in public improvements. There would be more of a demand, consequently, for manufactured goods—steel, automobiles and so on. And there'd be more employment."

A long, racy-looking foreign touring car, driven by a colored chauffeur, will carry General Coxey on his tour. Then there will be a big sedan to carry other members of his family. Following these will be the two sleeping car busses, with berths and kitchens. Then there will be four great red trucks, with bright yellow letters setting forth the object of the tour.

Coxey displayed these trucks proudly. They bore slogans, quotations, a copy of the bill introduced in Congress, and a quotation from an editorial in the Indianapolis Times urging consideration of Coxey's plan.

Tent Seats 5000
These trucks carry a huge tent, 180 feet long by 100 feet wide, and enough benches and circus seats for 5,000 people. There is a loud speaker apparatus, to make sure that every listener can hear all that is said.

And, of course, there is the calliope.

With General Coxey will travel his wife and his daughter, Miss Ruth Coxey. Until recently, Miss Coxey was a member of the chorus in Ziegfeld's "Show Boat." She plans to speak from the same platform with her father. Her chum, Miss Gwendolyn Lee of Canton,

THESE FACE GENERAL COXEY'S WRATH

The following 12 congressmen who helped kill General Jacob S. Coxey's new finance bill in the House Banking Committee, will find their home districts invaded by Coxey this summer as the general opens his campaign to force his bill through Congress:

Congressman Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania, committee chairman.

James G. Strong, Republican,

Blue Rapids, Kas.

Robert Luce, Republican,

Waltham, Mass.

E. Hart Fenn, Republican,

Wethersfield, Conn.

F. D. Letts, Republican, Davenport, Ia.

William F. Stevenson, Democrat, Cheraw, S. C.

Otis Wingo, Democrat, DeQueen, Ark.

Henry B. Steagall, Democrat, Ozark, Ala.

T. Alan Goldsborough, Democrat, Denton, Md.

Elmer O. Leatherwood, Republican, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Carroll L. Beedy, Republican, Portland, Me.

Joseph L. Hooper, Republican, Battle Creek, Mich.

Ohio, another former Ziegfeld girl, will go with her.

Coxey will head first for Pennsylvania, working his way along to New England, and swinging back to Maryland. Then he will travel to Michigan, Iowa, and Utah, finishing by coming back across country and dropping down into Alabama and South Carolina.

He has had a great stack of propaganda printed. And he is going to see that one of these papers is stuffed into every rural mail box in each congressional district where he speaks.

So the new Coxey's Army is about to take the road.

MANY STIRRING SCENES IN "THE FLYING FOOL"

Appearing in a series of breathtaking, death-defying aerial exploits, "The Flying Fool" comes to the New Grand theatre on Thursday and Friday next in the person of William Boyd, Pathe star. It is a thrilling, air drama in which this popular player is supported by Marie Prevost, Tom O'Brien, Russell Gleason and other notable screen artists.

While this new air picture has an aviation background and contains some of the most sensational air stunts ever photographed, it is essentially a high powered drama of humor, mingled skillfully and blended into a fine network of entertainment.

It is the story of a stunt flyer, who risks his life every day to satisfy a thrill-cure mob. He is a devil-may-care personality whose other chief interest in life is women. But, he boasts, he has never fallen in love. Then his kid brother becomes interested in a cabaret entertainer and the Flying Fool decides to "save" him from this supposedly designing woman. What happens after that is plenty and the story is said to rise to a tremendous climax in the air.

Marie Prevost plays the cabaret singer. Tom O'Brien has a serious heavy role that suits him ideally and Russell Gleason plays the brother. Others in the cast are Dan Wolheim, Kate Bruce, and Dorothy Ward.

WONDERFUL STORY FAITHFULLY TOLD

"The Bridge of San Luis Rey," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much-heralded filmation, with dialogue and talking sequences, of Thornton Wilder's celebrated novel, is the attraction now showing at the Saenger theatre, as one of the most important theatrical events of the season.

Plans to film the Pulitzer prize-winning novel a literary sensation, started widespread debate, because of the strangeness of the story and the difficulties of putting it on the screen. But under the direction of Charles Brabin this was not only done, but with almost utter fidelity to the original book.

Majestic settings, great cathedrals, picturesque wilds and strange, uncanny lighting and photography effects; the thrilling spectacle of the wrecking of a great bridge over an Andean gorge, and vivid, intimate details that literally bare the lives of its characters are all woven into the central theme, a story of love.

The cast is a remarkable one, as famous artists fill every principal role. Lily Damita plays the fiery dancer and Ernest Torrence is seen as Uncle Pio. Don Alvarado, Raquel Torres, Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall, Emily Fitzroy, Duncan Rinaldo and many others
